Gladfelter Hall, 9th floor,
Weigley Room (914)

For nearly a century and a half, the Sand Creek Massacre has been at the center of struggles over history and memory in the American West: from the government investigations launched in the massacre's immediate aftermath; to the controversial work of so-called Indian reformers, writing late in the nineteenth century; to memorials erected in Colorado during the Cold War; to the impact of popular histories; to the recently opened Sand Creek Massacre National Historic Site. Ari Kelman, McCabe Greer Professor of History at the The Pennsylvania State University, will discuss the meaning and impact of the longstanding fight to shape and control memories of Sand Creek.

Copies of Dr. Kelman's book A Misplaced Massacre: Struggling Over the Memory of Sand Creek (winner of the 2014 Bancroft Prize) will be available for purchase and signing.
